FLEETHACKER

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

01 / ELIGIBILITY CONDUCT AND SECURITY

These Terms and Conditions apply to all attendees of Fleethacker 2026, hosted by Defense Unicorns, Inc. (the Organizer), including participants, judges, staff, vendors, and service providers. By attending, you agree to the shared requirements below. Government-specific and non-government-specific provisions apply only to the participant category identified in each section.

01 Eligibility registration and access

Fleethacker is open to U.S. businesses and U.S. nonprofit organizations, including U.S. academic institutions. Individual participants must be U.S. citizens who are above the age of majority in their jurisdiction of residence. U.S. Federal and Government employees may attend subject to the rules and policies of their employing agency. Government participants must comply with applicable ethics regulations and contribute their event work under government unlimited rights licensing.

Only registered attendees may enter event sessions and activities. Do not share badges, credentials, or event access. Follow venue access and security procedures.

02 Code of conduct

Treat everyone with respect, professionalism, and courtesy. Harassment, discrimination, intimidation, deception to obtain information, and disruptive or unsafe behavior are prohibited.

Report suspicious behavior, unauthorized access, or conduct concerns to event staff immediately. The Organizer may remove attendees whose conduct threatens event safety, security, or integrity.

03 Information and device security

Do not introduce classified information into event systems, workspaces, conversations, or demonstrations. Do not introduce CUI, export-controlled, proprietary, or other restricted information unless the Organizer has confirmed an authorized environment, audience, and handling procedure.

Do not scan, intercept, probe, disrupt, or access event infrastructure or another attendee's device without explicit written authorization. Report vulnerabilities through the Organizer's responsible disclosure process; do not exploit or publish them.

You are responsible for the security and compliance of devices you bring. Use a strong passcode, lock your screen when away, and keep devices with you. Use your own charger and cable or a power-only adapter at public USB ports.

04 Confidentiality and tool use

Do not disclose another attendee's non-public mission, business, personal, or product information without permission. Publicly released material remains subject to its applicable license and distribution terms.

Do not place restricted information in SI prompts, public repositories, cloud tools, screenshots, or demos without explicit authorization for that tool and use. Use only data you are authorized to share. Licensing and use are made in good faith by the technology enablers. Additional access beyond the event is deferred to the original contributing authorities and should not be expected following event conclusion.

05 Shared intellectual property requirements

Respect third-party and employer intellectual property, data-rights markings, and open-source licenses. Identify pre-existing materials and applicable restrictions before sharing or incorporating them. The contribution rights in Sections 6 and 7 apply according to participant status. Participation alone does not transfer ownership of pre-existing materials or require public release of proprietary information.

06 Government participants only

I have obtained the approvals required for my official participation. I will accept event support, meals, and materials only as permitted by my agency's applicable ethics and administrative requirements.

I will identify pre-existing code, documentation, tools, data, and other materials and disclose applicable ownership, licenses, and restrictions before incorporation into event work. I will not contribute material beyond my authority or promise rights held by another party.

I will contribute the new code, documentation, and other works I create during Fleethacker under government unlimited rights licensing. The U.S. Government receives unlimited rights in those event works. Pre-existing materials remain subject to their existing ownership, licenses, and restrictions; I will identify those materials separately before incorporating them into event work and will not contribute materials that I am not authorized to provide under these terms.

07 Non government participants only

My employer or organization has authorized my participation where required. My contributions do not violate existing employment, confidentiality, IP assignment, or other obligations. I have permission to contribute the materials I provide.

I will identify pre-existing IP and applicable licenses or restrictions to event staff before incorporating it into new code, documentation, or other event works. I will not use another party's proprietary materials without permission.

Pre-existing intellectual property remains with its owner. Participants extending proprietary products retain rights in their original intellectual property and enhancements, subject to applicable employment agreements and licenses. To the extent I am authorized to do so, I grant the U.S. Government an irrevocable, worldwide, royalty-free license to use, modify, and distribute new code, documentation, and other works I contribute during the event for governmental purposes. This grant excludes separately identified pre-existing proprietary materials and proprietary product enhancements. Third-party and open-source materials remain subject to their applicable licenses. I will document contribution ownership and restrictions in the project submission and will not distribute other contributors' work beyond the rights they have granted.

08 Software licenses and evaluation access

I will use each tool under its applicable license and event access terms, including any evaluation period and restrictions on copying, redistribution, reverse engineering, or production use. Access during the event does not extend its license or create permanent use rights. Open-source tools remain subject to their respective licenses.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

09 Non endorsement and government protections

Attendance does not constitute U.S. Government, DoW, Department of the Navy, or other agency endorsement of any organizer, vendor, product, or service. Participation does not create a government procurement obligation.

Government participants must not use their official position to provide a competitive advantage to any commercial participant. Nothing in these terms waives the sovereign immunity of the United States Government.

10 Photography and recording

The Organizer may photograph, film, and record the event for official, educational, and promotional purposes. By entering and remaining at the event, you consent to the capture and use of your image, voice, and likeness in event-related materials, communications, and publications. Notify registration staff upon arrival if you prefer not to be photographed or recorded. Reasonable efforts will be made to accommodate your request.

11 Vendors service providers and judges

Follow this policy and venue procedures. Keep sensitive information confidential. Do not solicit attendees for sales or marketing during the event.

Evaluate submissions impartially. Disclose conflicts of interest before judging and protect team information and non-public solution details.

12 Assumption of risk and liability for non government participants

My participation is voluntary. I assume responsibility for risks associated with participation, including personal injury, property damage, and data loss. To the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, I release the Organizer and its officers, directors, employees, and agents from claims arising from my participation, except for gross negligence or willful misconduct.

13 Enforcement and reporting

Report concerns to event staff or the registration desk. The Organizer may restrict access or remove an attendee for violations and may report concerns to the attendee's employer or chain of command as appropriate.

14 Participant acknowledgment

By signing or electronically acknowledging these Terms and Conditions, I confirm that I have read and agree to the shared requirements and the provisions applicable to my participant category.
